Jen Rozenbaum

Jen Rozenbaum embraces her femininity while allowing women to embrace their own. By daring her clients to shed their clothes, they begin to shed their inhibitions. In the last nine years, Jen has found a burgeoning audience in the intimate photography market and is now sharing her Shamelessly Feminine movement with women worldwide.

Jen has been featured such places as Good Morning America, Entrepreneur magazine and MSNBC. In 2015 she was able to cross an item off her bucket list when she was asked to present a TEDx Talk about her Shamelessly Feminine message. Just this year, Jen was presented with the Nikon Ambassador's Choice Award for Emerging Talent.

In addition to empowering women with her photography, Jen is also a breast cancer survivor, which has only made her mission to make women see their own power run even deeper. She uses her camera not only to tell stories of amazing women, but to heal them and herself.

As a self-taught photographer, educator and entrepreneur, she proves that you can own your world if you live fearlessly, think audaciously and act spontaneously.

“ For me, the camera isn't just a preserver of memories, but also a healing tool. I use it to help women celebrate their unique femininity, shamelessly. When that happens, there is an amazing exchange of energy and healing. They discover their self worth, their power and once they do that, they are unstoppable! ”
