

COOLPIX 2000 RECALL

Nikon Inc. is voluntarily recalling certain Coolpix 2000 digital cameras because of a possible short circuit and overheating in the battery compartment. This overheating could cause a burn to the hand of someone touching the affected area. We are asking that owners of the recalled units return them to Nikon for a free replacement. The replacement units have been redesigned so that this problem will not occur.

Nikon has not received any reports of short circuits or overheating in the United States and no injuries have been reported from anywhere in the world.

This voluntary recall is limited to Coolpix 2000 digital cameras with serial numbers 3010001 – 3060980 and 3510001 – 3561916. The serial number is printed on the bottom of the camera. Consumers who have a Coolpix 2000 with a serial number in one of these ranges should immediately stop using it, remove the batteries, and call Nikon Customer Service at (800) 645-6687 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. ET, Monday through Friday.

When you call you will receive instructions and materials for the return of your camera, postage prepaid. You can also request this material via E-mail by sending a request to cr.nikon@attglobal.net and enter "Coolpix 2000 Return" in the subject line. Include your name and mailing address in the message along with the request for packaging material for your Coolpix 2000 return. In response to telephone calls and e-mails, Nikon will send you a prepaid shipping label, box, packing material and instructions to safely return your camera. Owners will have their Coolpix 2000 promptly replaced with a new Coolpix 2000 digital camera free of charge.

Nikon is committed to safety and to providing to its customers only the highest quality cameras and photographic equipment. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause you, and appreciate your continued support of Nikon.